Hello Stranger!

Supervisor Says Junior High School Needed

San Diego, California
November 14th, 1934

Editor,
Ocean Beach News,
Ocean Beach, California.

Dear Sir:

Upon visiting the Point Loma High School recently it was very forcibly impressed upon me that the crowded condition of the school is not to the best interests of the children of Point Loma.

From time to time there has been some talk of building a Junior High School and separating the Junior from the Senior High School. It appears to me that this would be very advisable at this time, and it also might be possible that we could obtain some assistance from the Government in one way or another for such a project.

It has been mentioned that a site might be obtained for such a Junior High School in Collier Park, of which there are sixty acres, very little of which is in use. This probably would necessitate a vote of the people. However, I feel that it would be justifiable if this park proved to be the proper location.

There will be two elections in the Spring, in the City, at which time such a proposal might be placed on the ballot. I would be pleased to assist any group who would meet and discuss this situation, and feel that this should be taken up very shortly. Not only would it give our children better facilities for their education, but also at this time would create much needed employment.

Very truly yours,
Edgar F. Hastings

OCEAN BEACH LIFE GUARD SAVES THREE IN OCEAN

Last Sunday three men in a canoe, W. H. McNutt, J. E. McNutt and G. F. Neale, all of east San Diego, were swept out in the current of the Mission bay channel to sea, and when out in the breakers their boat capsized. The men clung to their overturned craft and shouted and waved for help.

Spade Burns, Ocean Beach life guard, reached the men in a life boat from here, hauled them into same, and brought them to shore. The men were no worse off but had a good scare and thorough soaking.

In the meanwhile a telephone message was sent to the Naval Air Station at North Island and an amphibian plane took off but the men had been rescued by the time the airmen reached the scene.

EASTERN STAR BIRTHDAY PARTY

Point Loma O. E. S. No. 490 will hold their annual birthday dinner Monday evening, November 19, at the Masonic hall. All members together with their wives or husbands are cordially invited to be present.

After a short form meeting an orchestra will furnish music for dancing. There will be cards for those who prefer this entertainment.

Roberts DeLuxe Bakery Opening Saturday

Saturday this week Roberts DeLuxe Bakery, a new business to Ocean Beach, will be opened at 1918 Bacon street, by W. B. Roberts and family who have been mighty busy the past two weeks installing equipment and getting their establishment in shape for the production of a first class line of bakery goods. According to announcement elsewhere in this issue there will be free refreshments served to all who visit the store on the opening day.

Mr. Roberts says bakery trucks will sell at retail in the Ocean Beach and Mission Beach areas and all he desires at this time is that you give his boys a trial and sample some of their many specials.

The Wonders of the Carlsbad Cavern of New Mexico

(A. J. ALLEN OF OCEAN BEACH)

Having visited all the best and largest caves in the world, Carlsbad Caves are with a peer among the famous caves of the world.

Jim White, the explorer, myself and two other gentlemen went down into these caves as early as 1915 when we had to go down in a bucket.

A couple of weeks ago I renewed my acquaintance with Jim and we had a long chat of the old days when only a dozen visitors would make this perilous trip and now the Government has taken it over and there are as many as 5,000 persons a week visiting the caverns. They now have beautiful trails and an elevator to go down 750 feet. This cavern is the most spectacular of underground wonders in the whole world for variety and beauty.

To attempt a description of its vastness and variety of decorations is beyond me or any living man. Great Cathedrals would fail, for compared with its ceiling, the highest man ever made is of a pygmy height. The widest dome an engineer ever attempted would be but one of a hundred alcoves in the cavern. We come across spots where the ceiling disappears behind thousands of glittering stalactites that hang five hundred feet above the floor. Heights of two hundred and three hundred feet are common. The dome of the largest room is 1,500 ft. in circumference and the room itself is almost a mile long.

Mr. Woodrow, our leading guide, told me that they had found new lower levels of 1,450 feet and they followed the dry sand of the lost river for over six miles to a larger room with entirely different formations than those in the corridors above. Calcite beads shining like diamonds in the glare of their searchlight. Thousands of "Cave pearls", or pistolites, rolling about under their feet.

These new chambers and passages will soon be made accessible to the public.

The next cave I am going to write about in this paper in the near future will be a cave which is situated in Waitomo, North Island of New Zealand. The one and only cave of its kind known to man in this world.

Col. D. C. Collier Dies From Heart Attack

Col. David Collier, 63, died Tuesday in Scripps clinic at La Jolla following an attack of heart disease Monday afternoon at his ranch near Ramona. Death of Col. Collier, who had lived in San Diego for 50 years came as a shock to his many friends and associates.

Col Collier is survived by his widow, Mrs. Clytie Collier; a son, Ira Clifton Collier, and a daughter, Clytie Lyon Collier, all of San Diego; a brother Judge Frank Collier, Los Angeles, and a sister, Mrs. Mabel Sharpsteen, Berkeley.

Col. Collier was born in Central City, Colo., Aug. 14, 1871, and came to California when still a young man.

Quoting from Winifred Davidson in the March 23, 1934, issue of the Ocean Beach News we find:

"A name which will always be associated with modern Ocean Beach is that of Col. D. C. Collier, jr., attorney, whose name will be perpetuated in our Collier park here, president in 1908 of the Ralston Realty Co., 'builder of University Heights,' as Smythe remarks, 'projector of magnificent improvements on Point Loma, and participant in other great enterprises; he is a man of creative instinct and substantial achievement'

"What is now Alligator Rock Lodge began as Col. Collier's famous 'Shack,' where for a number of years he spent hours and days of rest and recreation; entertaining celebrities, helping to organize various civic projects which eventually brought world fame to San Diego, among these the San Diego-California Panama exposition of 1915-16 and the marking by means of the Serra Cross on Presidio Hill the place where in Upper California civilization had its beginning. That it was at Ocean Beach that these and other successful San Diego civic enterprises had their inception is not generally known; but being once known should not soon be forgotten.

"'I first saw Ocean Beach in 1884', Col. Collier told me the other day. 'You can go the limit when you try to describe the beauty of that flower-strewn plain sloping to the sea.' "

Col. Collier earned the rank of colonel by serving as a lieutenant colonel on the staff of Gov. J. N. Gillette of California from 1907 to 1911.

In 1922 Col. Collier was appointed by the late President Harding as commissioner general to represent the United States at the Brazilian Centennial Exposition at Rio de Janeiro, and in 1925 was made directorgeneral of the Sesquicentennial at Philadelphia, and was director general of the Order of the Liberty Bell since 1930. He was interested in the start of A Century of Progress at Chicago.

Col. Collier was a 32nd degree Mason, a member of the Archeological Institute of America, California Historical society, Sons of Colorado, Colorado Pioneers, San Diego chamber of commerce, honorary life member of Ramona chamber of commerce, and an honorary member of Associacoa Brasileira da Imprensa, Rio de Janeiro. He also was a member of the Chicago Athletic club, the San Diego Yacht and Rowing clubs, the Sojourners, the Pen and Pencil, State Fencibles and the Boosters' club, Philadelphia.

Funeral services were held Thursday at 2 p. m. in the Bradley-Woolman funeral church under auspices of San Diego lodge, No. 35, F. & A. M. Interment Mt. Hope cemetery.

TRAVEL TALK ABOUT MEXICO

Mr. Messenger, teacher of the Spanish class on Tuesday at the Scout hut, adjoining the M. E. church, has arranged to tell his class about a recent trip by auto to Mexico City.

The class starts at 1:30 p. m. and anyone interested in learning Spanish is invited to attend.

1500 More Marines To Base in San Diego

(Los Angeles Examiner)

Washington, Nov. 12.—(Universal Service.)—The largest permanent force of Marines ever centralized in the Southern California area will be based at San Diego probably for two years under the new Fleet Marine Force plan now in operation.

Aside from the normal contingent of Marines for maintenance of the post, policing and general upkeep, the new F.M.F. will base 1500 crack Marines at San Diego beginning immediately.

This force is in addition to the Marines on specific detail to ships of the Fleet, who also will make their headquarters as usual in the San Diego area while the Fleet is in the Pacfic.

The Fleet Marine Force, organized some time ago in a general recasting of the Marine Corps, concentrates all available Marine strength not needed for duty aboard ship in this one unit. It was designed to afford a more mobile Marine force for emergency duty on foreign shores, always in the prime of training and ready for immediate movement.

Previously these Marines have been scattered at various points throughout the country and have been organized into active units only as needed.

Thus when the Cuban revolution broke out last year a regiment was organized hurriedly at Quantico, Va., for duty there.

In that instance it was necessary to draw small forces of Marines from various posts throughout the country, hurriedly organize, equip and train them, and had immediate service been necessary they would not have been in the best of preparation for duty, in the opinion of naval experts.

After this experience the department decided to organize the permanent F. M. F. and base it in the San Diego area for at least two years.

Meanwhile there is every likelihood that after the first of next July this force will be increased to 2500 men. The Secretary of the Navy and the naval budget officer have approved an increase of 1100 men for the Marine Corps for the 1935-1936 fiscal year and this increase has been approved by the Federal Bureau of the Budget.

Of the total increase about 75 men would be used to man a new 10,000-ton, 8-inch gun cruiser, and the remainder assigned to the F.M.F.

REV. W. S. DUNN TELLS ABOUT CLIMBING JUNGFRAU

Miss Roberta Parker, from Point Loma high school, played two piano selections.

Rev. W. S. Dunn was speaker of the day and told of a trip to Europe a few years back; of a visit to Flanders Fields. His visit to Switzerland, short description of the country, its people, their policies, etc. In the Alps country Rev. Dunn joined a party that went to the top of Mount Jungfrau, his description of this climb of 11,000 feet on the cog-wheel railway thence the balance of more than 3,000 feet on foot with a guide, was most interesting to those present. The inspection of the lip of the glacier later and the discovery of a soldanella alpina, the beautiful alpine flower of blue to pink that having fringed corolla lobes. This rare flower stores its own oxygen and is able to generate enough heat, even under the ice to bring forth life in the spring, and appear as a full grown plant when the short summer season arrives.

John Harrison was a guest.

Mass Meeting Called For Monday Night

Under sponsorship of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce there will be a mass meeting next Monday evening, at 8 p. m. at the Woman's clubhouse, for the purpose of hearing from property owners in regard to renting their houses to Japanese.

Property owners will be allowed to have their say in favor or against the proposition, and any members of the body will be welcomed to submit any plan or project they may have in mind that will build a better and bigger community.

If you are interested in bringing prosperity to the beach section let us hear from you.

A Glimpse of Hawaii.

Honolulu T. H. Oct., 16, 1934.
To the Editor of
The Ocean Beach News.
Greetings from Honolulu, Hawaii.
Dear Editor:

We arrived here at the islands, safely, after a most delightful ocean voyage of six days on the S.S. Lurine, one of the largest and finest, new boats running between Willmington and Honolulu.

The Islands are beautiful and Honolulu is quite a metropoliten city of two hundred thousand people, with street cars and busses, which takes you out to Waikiki Beach and all parts of the city. They have four movie shows here a Kress's 5&10 store, Piggley Wiggley stores, all doing a fine business.

Their principal industries here are the sugar cane and pineapple. They have four large pineapple factories, I was all thru the Dole factory last week its the largest pineapple factory in the world, employing 10,000 to 12,000 people, when running at its full capacity.

In the sugar cane fields there are hundreds of little flat cars running into the fields on narrow railroad tracks and they fill the cars up with the cane and then run them directly to the large cane mills, a very interesting sight to see.

The Hybiscus tree is the islands national flower and grows wild every where and in all colors. There are many beautiful flowering trees, among the most interesting is the African tulip tree, which has large clusters of red and yellow on it.

The next, the Pon-C. Ana tree, which is a mass of flaming scarlet blossoms, the rainbow shower, which shows all colors of the rainbow in its blossoms. Then comes the African sausage tree and the rat tree, which are the great curiousity of all. I'm inclosing a post card of a sausage tree, they look just like sausages in color and all and hang by strings on the trees. I'm bringing home some of them and also the brown rats.

We took a 100 mile ride around the island last Sunday, stopped at the lovely coral and submarine gardens, also at the noted Davids Grass hut a typical Hawiian native, also took in Schoefield Barracks, the largest barracks in the world, where 15,000 soldiers are stationed, the Government Bldgs and grounds are beautiful, they have just completed a $50,000 movie picture house there for the soldiers.

The weather is very warm here and quite a lot of rain, but the nights are cool and nice for sleeping.

Have seen a number of the famous hulu hulu dances, some of which are very pretty and graceful and all dressed in their native hulu hulu skirts of all colors and lovely flower leis, present a very beautiful sight.

I remain most sincerly,
Mrs. F. M. Tibbetts.

Am painting a number of Honolulu pictures.

BASEBALL AT OCEAN BEACH SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon at Collier park, Ocean Beach baseball players will meet the Ortiz Chevrolet team in a contest which promises to be lively.

Last Sunday the home team won over the National City club to a 13 to 1 score.

Nebraskans Building Home at Ocean Beach

P. M. Burrows, local builder, this week started the construction of a four room frame cottage and garage at 4546 Coronado avenue at an approximate cost of $2,000.

The home is for Mina C. and Isabelle Doyle, two sisters who have owned the lots for several years, but recently came here from Omaha, Nebraska, to make their permanent home.

We welcome the Nebraskans to Ocean Beach and are quite sure they will find this part of Southern California up to their expectations.

What our town needs is fewer pessimists and a greater number of citizens with more faith in its future.

Italy's Glass Blowers Coming to Exposition

The historic atmosphere of Venice, city of canals, will be transplanted to San Diego for the California Pacific International Exposition, with Italy's Royal Glass Blowers demonstrating the genius which has won them acclaim thruout the world.

The contract for the colorful Royal Glass Factory, semi-official representative of the Italian government, was signed this week by the Exposition's executive management.

In a special building to be erected in the "Villages of the World", the glamorous scenes of the Old World will be reproduced. Representing an investment of more than $25,000, the exhibit will be one of the outstanding displays in the spectacle of 1935.

For more than 50 years, the Venice & Murano Co., owners of the Royal Glass Factory, have been demonstrating the skill and outstanding craftsmanship of their workmen in Barbarigo Palace, a magnificent structure fronting the Grand Canal in Venice.

From the palace will come ten workmen to blow the molten glass and fabricate the art products for which Venice is famous. In addition to the actual work, which will again illustrate not only what is done, but how it is done as well, the Royal Factory will present a priceless collection of medieval and modern glassware.

Mrs. Vesta C. Muehleisen, outstanding San Diego civic worker and a member of the Board of Education, will supervise the establishment of one of the outstanding phases of the spectacle, the Palace of Education with exhibits from all parts of the world showing the progress of man's struggle for knowledge.

With work on the Exposition progressing rapidly, plans were laid this week for construction of more than a score of new buildings, five of which will be as large as many of the present structures in Balboa park, where the Exposition will open May 29. Work already has started on 15 buildings, to comprise the unit known as the "House of Pacific Relations", designed for the promotion of international amity. In these dwellings will reside, during the Exposition, the representative of the governments participating in the international project.

Definite indications that all of the United States is turning to San Diego for the outstanding entertainment attraction next year, was seen in a report from Elwood T. Bailey, San Diego's ambassador-at-large, now touring the East on lecture engagements Bailey wrote that "everywhere I have spoken and extended our invitations to attend the Exposition, the response has been splendid. People are rapidly becoming interested in our Exposition."

Further evidence of this fact was revealed in the proposal of five news reel companies to come to San Diego on Nov. 27. to photograph scenes in the Exposition grounds to be shown in motion picture houses thruout the United States. Arrangements for the movies to be taken in Balboa park are now being made.

GREEN'S GLOOMY STATEMENT ON UNEMPLOYMENT IS PARTLY OFFSET BY OTHER VIEWS.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

©, Western Newspaper Union.

WITH another winter at hand and millions of Americans still unemployed, organized labor, through President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, has asked the administration to appeal to all industries to increase production 30 per cent. Mr. Green in a public statement asserted that for the first time since President Roosevelt's re-employment program got under way in July, 1933, unemployment has exceeded last year's level. The number of persons without any employment he puts at 8,348,000. Those without jobs in industry in September numbered 10,951,000. Jobs for 2,220,000 were provided by conservation camps and emergency relief projects, "but these emergency jobs," he said, "are not creating incomes to pay the costs."

William Green

Mr. Green continued: "Could not the administration invite all industries to co-operate in a general program to increase production and put men to work?

"If the nation-wide level of all production were lifted 30 per cent in a balanced program, adjusting production to consumption needs, each industry would then be assured that all other industries would increase their production, and the wealth produced by putting labor to work would create income to buy the product of all.

"The total number at work in the United States was 39,764,000 in September, 1933; by September, 1934, it had declined to 39,367,000. During these 12 months the normal increase in population has added close to 450,000 to the army of job seekers for whom industry provides no work. Thus the number without work in industry has risen from 10,108,000 in September, 1933, to 10,951,000 in September, 1934."

Quite as gloomy as Mr. Green's report was a statement of the National Industrial Conference board. This agency noted that the general improvement in manufacturing activity usually occurring in September failed to materialize. Instead, declines of 5.7 per cent in the number of wage earners employed, of 6.1 per cent in total man hours worked and of 5.8 per cent in payrolls disbursed, were reported. In addition, it was stated that rise in the cost of living from August to September depressed real weekly earnings of wage earners 2.1 per cent.

On the other hand, the United States Chamber of Commerce in its summary of conditions throughout the nation reports continued improvement of business sentiment although it has not as yet been reflected definitely in the volume of transactions.

Assurances by President Roosevelt that present governmental lending operations are not to be permanent and that private enterprise will be supported, the onganization reported, have been received favorably by business and industry.

Steady improvement in the agricultural situation is noted by the farm credit administration. The volume of business of production credit associations registered an increase of 18 per cent during the first 15 days of October. Applications for farm mortgage loans are about one-third of the peak reached a year ago.

ONE of the most encouraging developments was the fact that the President and the bankers had reached a virtual truce which gave assurance of the expansion of credit for business and industry. When the financiers met in Washington for the annual convention of the American Bankers' association, many of them were still utterly at outs with the administration's financial and economic policies, believing that the government's credit was menaced by the unbalanced condition of the national budget and the unstabilized dollar.

Then appeared before the bankers in Constitution hall President Roosevelt himself and made an appeal for "an alliance of all forces intent upon the business of recovery." He called on the banks to lend more money to finance the New Deal program.

"Government should assert its leadership in encouraging not only confidence of the people in banks but the confidence of the banks in the people," he said.

"In March, 1933, I asked the people of this country to renew their confidence in banks. They took me at my word. Tonight I ask the bankers of this country to renew their confidence in the people of this country. I think you will take me at my word."

He said that the administration stood squarely back of continuance of the profit system and that emergency activities would be curtailed as fast as private business could pick up the load.

It was noted that the President made no promise to balance the budget or to stabilize the currency; also that he did not comment on the proposal to create a central bank. His talk was heartily applauded, but many of his hearers were far from satisfied.

Before Mr. Roosevelt spoke, the bankers were addressed by Jackson Reynolds, president of the First National bank of New York and a stanch sound money advocate.

Further overtures to the bankers were made by Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency. Both of them gave assurance that the economic condition of the country is sound, and Mr. Jones urged the bankers to expand their loans to business.

To all this the bankers responded by unanimously adopting resolutions promising to co-operate with the government but demanding a balanced budget.

Rudolf S. Hecht of New Orleans was elected president of the association to succeed Mr. Law.

MANY thoughtful persons comment on the apparent discrepancy between the pleas of William Green for more employment and the policy pursued by organized labor in fostering great strikes seemingly for the sole purpose of enforcing unionization and the closed shop. Many thousands of persons are thrown out of employment by these strikes, industries are hampered or shut down and often serious disorders result. To the bystander it does not seem fair that, in a time of distress, such methods should be followed in order that the strength of the unions might be increased. The latest example of this policy is the strikes which have resulted in the closing of all the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company's shops and warehouses in Cleveland and which are in effect in Milwaukee against the A. and P. and two other chain store companies. There was a prospect that these walkouts would spread throughout Ohio and Wisconsin.

IMMEDIATE cash payment of the veterans' bonus certificates was demanded by the American Legion in convention at Miami, Fla., despite the knowledge that it is opposed by President Roosevelt and the belief that he would veto any legislation providing for such payment. The vote was 987 to 183.

Frank Belgrano, Jr.

The Legion's new national commander is Frank Belgrano, Jr., of San Francisco, now a banker. All other candidates withdrew and Mr. Belgrano was elected unanimously. In his speech of acceptance he said he would conduct his office with vigor and determination.

"Our country is filled today with too much talk about isms," he said. "Everywhere we hear about Communism, Socialism, Fascism, Hitlerism, and others too numerous to mention.

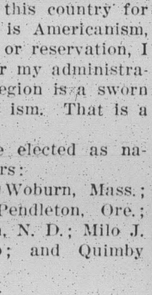
"There is room in this country for only one ism. That is Americanism. Without equivocation or reservation, I say to you that under my administration this American Legion is a sworn enemy of every other ism. That is a declaration of war."

The following were elected as national vice commanders:

Daniel J. Doherty, Woburn, Mass.; Harold J. Warner, Pendleton, Ore.; John Kenelly, Mandan, N. D.; Milo J. Warner, Toledo, Ohio; and Quimby Melton, Griffin, Ga.

CHICAGO'S magnificent World's fair is no more. It closed formally and forever at midnight, October 31, amid a riot of gayety and with a final burst of fireworks, and the vast throng of last-day visitors left the grounds with a feeling of sadness. Mayor Kelly had proclaimed a half-holiday and thousands upon thousands of Chicagoans joined with the crowds that had come from elsewhere to celebrate the windup of this most notable exposition. After artillery salutes and parades, the final ceremonies were staged in the Court of States with Governor Horner, Mayor Kelly and President Rufus Dawes of the exposition as speakers. Exactly at midnight Mr. Dawes threw a switch that shut off all lights on the grounds and set off a gigantic fireworks display. This was not quite the end, however, for the lights were turned on again and, though no one was admitted after midnight, the Halloween carnival continued until three o'clock in the morning. Then the lights went out forever.

KING PRAJADHIPOK of Siam is not satisfied with his present status as a limited monarch and has threatened to abdicate unless the government withdraws a measure proposed in the national assembly which deprives him of his traditional right to decide whether persons sentenced to death for crimes shall live or die. This, of course, is but one of the distasteful limitations prescribed by the national assembly since the revolution of 1932 which forced the king to give the country a new constitution. There is no revolution in this case, for the people of Siam generally know nothing about the dispute between the king and the government.



King Prajadhipok

Prajadhipok is at present in England with his queen, and the negotiations are carried on by cable. His majesty's secretary there said the king's fight was really a fight for the principles of democratic government and that he would not give in. The secretary explained that half the members of the Siamese legislative assembly are elected directly by the people, and the other half nominated by the government, with his majesty placing "great importance upon the attitude of the elected members," who Prajadhipok claims opposed the measure relating to life and death prerogatives.

THERE were predictions of civil war in Austria between the two "private armies," Chancellor Schuschnigg's Catholic storm troops and the Fascist Heimwehr headed by Prince Ernst von Starhemberg. The cabinet stirred up the old taxation trouble by legislation taking from the provinces and municipalities their right to share in taxes collected in Vienna. With this as an excuse, the opposition to the government is exhibiting intense activity.

The Heimwehr leaders are demanding that the nation's corporate parliament be composed entirely of representatives of the auxiliary armed forces. Chancellor Schuschnigg and other Catholic leaders are bitterly opposed to this.

The financial situation has further complicated matters. There is a budget deficit of $14,000,000 for the first half of the year.

PROF. JEAN PICCARD made another balloon excursion into the stratosphere, and accompanying him was his plucky wife, Jeanette, the only licensed woman balloon pilot in the United States. They ascended from Detroit with their 600,000 cubic-foot bag, passed over Lake Erie, rose to a height of about ten miles, and then came down on a farm four miles west of Cadiz, Ohio. The gondola landed in a tree but the two occupants were only slightly bruised and scratched, and it was believed the delicate scientific instruments they carried were uninjured. The trip was made for the purpose of studying the cosmic rays, and no effort was made to establish a record for altitude.

SILK and rayon dyers did not join in the recent general strike of textile workers because of their contract, but 30,000 of them in the Passaic valley and the New York metropolitan area have now quit their jobs and the dye houses were closed perforce.

When negotiations for a new contract began two months ago the union asked for a 30-hour week at $1 an hour and a closed shop. The closed shop was the sore point of issue. Neither side would change its attitude.

George Baldánzi, president of the Federation of Silk and Rayon Dyers, then waived the demand for a 30-hour week at $30 a week and said the union would accept a minimum guarantee of $20. This proposal was rejected by the employers.

BREAKING records all along the route, M-10001, the new streamlined train of the Union Pacific, made an extraordinary run from Los Angeles to New York in 56 hours 55 minutes. The best previous time for a transcontinental train crossing was established in 1906, when the late E. H. Harriman, then chairman of the Union Pacific, traveled from San Francisco to New York in 71 hours 27 minutes.

JOHN B. CHAPPLE, Republican candidate for United States senator from Wisconsin, proved himself to be a gentleman at Waukesha. He was listed as principal speaker at a rally there. John Gay, candidate for congress, preceded him on the program and alluded to President Roosevelt as "a man who can't stand on his own feet without crutches." Mr. Chapple arose and said:

J. B. Chapple

"Men and women of Waukesha, the President of the United States has been insulted by a previous speaker on this program in a serious personal way, and while I may differ with Democratic policies, I will not stand for that kind of an attack on the President's physical infirmity, and I therefore refuse to speak on this program and will return to Waukesha at some later time."

CONVERSATIONS preliminary to the 1935 naval conference opened in London, and the Japanese did what was expected of them. Ambassador Matsudaira and Admiral Yamamoto told the British and the Americans in turn that Japan was not satisfied with the existing treaties—everyone knew that—and set forth these main points:

1. The powers should agree that Japan may have equality, "in principle," in defensive armaments.

2. The ratio system should be abolished, and "defensive" ships limited on a total tonnage basis, instead of by categories.

3. Each nation would drastically reduce "offensive" armaments, thus cutting down the chances of any war of aggression, while building whatever "defensive" ships within the tonnage limit agreed it feels it needs for security.

LIEUT. FRANCESCO AGELLO of Italy, known as "Crazy Boy" because of his daring aerial performances, set a new record for speed in flight when he drove his seaplane over a course at Desenzano, four times at an average of 440.29 miles an hour. It was his own record that he broke by about 16 miles an hour. He used his old plane but it had a new Fiat AS 6-V type motor developing 3,500 horse power.

THREE American physicians have been awarded the Nobel prize in medicine for 1934. They are Dr. George Minot and Dr. William P. Murphy of the Harvard medical school and Dr. George H. Whipple of the University of Rochester. The prize of $41,000 is divided among them for their development of liver therapy in anemia.

Bird That Directs Lightning

Perhaps it will be news to many to learn that the "hamerkop" is a much-respected bird, and by far the luckiest in Basutoland, for no native will molest it. The reason, according to a firm and widespread belief, is that the "hamerkop" has the power to direct lightning, and so to blast any persecutor. Besides, the natives say it is a very kind-hearted bird—it will not even interfere with a puff-adder. Should a puff-adder enter a "hamerkop's" nest, the birds leave and build another nest notwithstanding the labor involved, letting the snake remain in occupation. —Montreal Herald.

Treaty May Be Sent to Wallace

Wrathful over the recent statement of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that Hawaii is not an integral part of the United States, citizens of that territory are considering sending for his inspection the carefully guarded treaty of June 16, 1897, which ceded the then republic to the United States. Withdrawn from the darkened vault in Honolulu where it is protected against the ravages of light and time, the document is shown being inspected by Lorrin P. Thurston, whose father was the original signer on behalf of Hawaii (right), and Edmund Hart, keeper of the territorial archives.

Lindy's Cottage on Long Island

This cottage on the Daniel Guggenheim estate at Sands Point, Long Island, is said to have been fitted up for occupancy by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and their baby son. The house is located seven miles from Roosevelt field, and it adjoins the Astor estate on which there is a flying field. It also fronts on Long Island sound, whereon seaplanes and amphibians can land.

Justice Is Cockeyed

"What terrible crime has this man committed?"

"He has done nothing. He was merely an innocent bystander when Tough Jim tried to kill a man, and we are holding him as witness."

"And where's Tough Jim?"

"He's out on bail."

An Established Name

A friend asked a merchant why he had changed his name to Montague.

"Because," said Mr. Montague, "it is so old and so firmly established in history."

"What was your name before?" asked the friend.

Attractive Linens FOR Embroidery

Stamped on Pure Linen in Matched "Dahlia" Design

No. 27 38-inch Scarf

No. 28 Buffet Set

No. 30 Vanity Set

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This set is quite a temptation for anyone who wants to add beauty to home surroundings at little cost. The material is pure linen and the pieces are useful articles. Use 2, 3 strand thread. Work the scarf in one or two shades of green, the flowers either in several shades of one color or several colors that blend. Work the lines around border in a dark brown or black. The entire design is simple and is worked in outline and lazy daisy stitches.

Write your stamped goods department, inclosing remittance, if you want to work some of these pieces. 50c for one number, 55c for two or 75c for all three.

Enclose stamped addressed envelope for reply, when writing for information.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

PETER FINDS HE IS MISTAKEN

BUTCHER THE SHRIKE was not the only newcomer in the Old Orchard. There was another stranger, and it did not take Peter Rabbit long to discover that he was looked on with some suspicion by all the other birds. The first time Peter saw him he was walking on the ground some distance off. He didn't hop, but walked, and at that distance looked all black. The way he carried himself and his movements as he walked, made Peter think of Creaker the Grackle. In fact, Peter mistook him for Creaker. That was because he didn't really look at him. If he had he would have seen at once that the stranger was smaller than Creaker.

Presently the stranger flew up in a tree, and at once Peter saw that his tail was little more than half as long as that of Creaker. At once it came over Peter that this was a stranger to him. Of course his curiosity was aroused at once. Anything like that is sure to arouse Peter's curiosity. He didn't have any doubt whatever that this was a member of the Blackbird family, but which one it could be he hadn't the least idea. "Jenny Wren will know," thought Peter, and scampered off to hunt her up.

"Who is that new member of the Blackbird family who has come to live in the Old Orchard?" Peter asked as soon as he found Jenny Wren.

Jenny's sharp little eyes snapped and she twitched her funny little tail as only she can. "What's that?" she cried.

"Who is that new member of the Blackbird family who has come to live in the old Orchard?" repeated Peter.

"There isn't any new member of the Blackbird family living in the Old Orchard," retorted Jenny Wren tartly.

"There is, too," contradicted Peter. "I saw him with my own eyes. I can see him now. He's sitting in that tree over yonder this very minute. He's all black, so of course he must be a member of the Blackbird family."

"Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut!" scolded Jenny Wren. "Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut, tut! That fellow isn't a member of the Blackbird family at all, and what's more, he isn't black. Go over there and take a good look at him and then come back and tell me if you still think he is black."

Jenny turned her back on Peter and went to hunting worms. There being nothing else to do, Peter hopped over where he could get a good look at the stranger. The sun was shining full on him, and he wasn't black at all. For the most part he was very dark green. At least, that is what Peter thought at first glance. Then, as the stranger moved, he seemed to be a rich purple in places. In short, he changed color. His feathers were like those of Creaker the Grackle—iridescent.

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN . . . The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I just heard of a man who kept company with a woman for sixty years and at last he married her when he was 109 years old. Do you believe this? If so, how do you account for a man marrying at 109 years of age, after going with a woman for 60 years?

Sincerely,
B. WILDERED.

Answer: He probably couldn't hold out any longer.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My son, who is in Bridgeport, Conn., has gotten into some sort of trouble and has been arrested. I have been advised to get a criminal lawyer for him. Are there any criminal lawyers in Bridgeport?

Yours truly,
E. LIZABETH.

Answer: There probably are several, but you'll have a hard time proving it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I just visited the city of Washington and went to the government buildings. I was particularly interested in the senate chamber. I saw a minister sitting next to the vice president of the United States. Tell me why is the minister there? Does he pray for the senators?

Sincerely,
A. SITESEER.

Answer: No! No! No! The minister does not pray for the senators. The minister takes a look at the senators and then prays for the country.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I met a young lady last week and am very fond of her. We were discussing "kissing" last night and she said that kisses were like a bottle of olives. What did she mean by that?

Sincerely,
OS. Q. LATION.

Answer: Very simple. She means that after you get the first one, the rest come easy.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have traveled all over the world. Everything is hustle bustle. There seems to be no sentiment left in the world. Is there one place in the world where I can find "happiness" and "contentment"?

Yours truly,
PHIL OSOFER.

Answer: There sure is. You can find them both in the dictionary.

Mother's Cook Book

PRESERVE SUGGESTIONS

HOW many of our housewives know the deliciousness of pickled and preserved watermelon rind? Instead of throwing it away try some of the good methods of preparing it for winter.

Preserved Watermelon Rind.

Cut the red portion of the melon from the rind, remove the green skin and cut into neat uniform pieces. Soak in lime water for three hours, then rinse and stand in ice water for an hour. Drain and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Make a sirup of two pounds of sugar and four quarts of water, drop the rind into it with one lemon, sliced thin, with a little ginger root, using two pounds of prepared melon rind. Cook until thick. Pack in jars and cover with the sirup. Seal.

Preserved Pears.

Take one pound each of pears and sugar, one pint of water and one lemon. The fruit may be preserved whole, in halves, or quartered. Boil the sugar and water five minutes. Cook the lemon in just water to cover, slicing thin; when tender and transparent add water and all to the pears and sirup and cook until the pears are clear and the sirup is thick. If the hard pears are used cook them in the water until tender and use the water for the sirup. A few cloves and stick cinnamon may be added if desired, and pineapple juice instead of water makes a most delightful flavor.

Pumpkin Preserves.

Remove the rind and seeds from a small pumpkin and cut into inch cubes. Cook in a small amount of water until tender. Drain and weigh. For each pound of pumpkin allow a pound of sugar, two lemons and two ounces of ginger root. Slice the lemon and soak with the ginger overnight in cold water. Next morning cook in the same water until the lemon rind is clear and tender. Add the sugar and pumpkin and simmer until the pumpkin is transparent. Drain, pack in jars. Cook the sirup until thick and pour over the fruit in the jars. Seal.

MOTHER—THE GOLFER

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SHE would be a better golfer
If she had a keener eye
For the ball, instead of gazing
At the woodlands and the sky.
She can never think it better
To keep looking at the ball,
Than to watch the baby robins,
And to hear their mother call.

She would be a better golfer
If she could be taught to know
It's the game that is important,
Not where four-leaf clovers grow;
For she stops the most strategic
Play and lets a foursome pass,
Just to pick a four-leaf clover
That is hiding in the grass.

She would be a better golfer—
She might get a decent score—
If she'd keep her mind on golfing
And think manfully of "Fore!"
But a golf game means to mother
Nothing but a chance to laze
Through a green field that reminds her
Of her happy rural days.

"Shirtmaker" Frock

PATTERN 9986

The vogue of the shirtmaker frock has been carried right over into the autumn, but the new members of this popular family are a trifle less severely tailored than those one has seen in all smart places during the summer. Here is an excellent example of what we mean—with chic short epaulet-like sleeves and soft gathers. You can make it of a fabric as formal as you may wish. It would be as smart as Paris in black with crystal buttons and a white satin knot at the throat. Or perhaps you would prefer it in crepe morocain in the warm new shade called "clay-rust."

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Pattern 9986 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39-inch fabric and ⅜ yard 1½ inch ribbon for bow.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

WITHOUT COMELINESS.

The bloom of youth is one of the coveted prizes in life. It is the nearest to personified perfection or immaculate beauty. To attain this standard is extremely rare and difficult to achieve. Often beauty betrays the person in whom it belongs, for a charming face may have a demon heart. More often is a face beauty-scarred by sickness or disease, but no more beautiful heart possession lives.

So often beauty of personality is judged by the face. Comeliness of the heart is greater to be prized than comeliness of the face, although the latter is the most popular in the world today. And so this is true, that the face is a betraying evil sometimes when mostly admired. It is said of the lowly Nazarene: "He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrow, and acquainted with grief." His picture always represented pity and sadness, but his heart always pulsated with happy anticipation. Again it is said of Him: "He hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see Him, there is no beauty that we should desire of Him."

There is a saying: "Beauty fades with age, so it is a summons to old age to "grow old gracefully," and be beautiful of heart, for beauty without virtue is as a rose without fragrance. The most beautiful face on record is that of a lady of 70. She had a storehouse full of memories of a useful and happy life of kind deeds. Sympathy and love were written all over her face. Her complexion was clear; she read without the aid of glasses. Her hair was a sparkling gray, and her walk was that of a nymph. Her wholesome life made all these accomplishments possible.

Very few there are whom you meet today who have not within the past few years met with some severe loss; but many a lucky person has found himself through losing a fortune. It is a good thing to remember these words also, "For all sad words or tongue or pen, the saddest are these: "It might have been." It may take a strong heart to bear up under such a severe misfortune, but some are now proclaiming riches untold that no one can rob them of. It is a fortunate being who can look on such circumstances and feel that way. The rich have shared heavily in these losses. A few years ago there were 513 persons with incomes of more than $1,000,000; in 1932 the number had shrunk to twenty and a further deflation in 1933. Last year's returns showed only 216 with incomes of $300,000 or more, putting them in the millionaire class as to capital possessed; in 1929 there were 2617, a shrinkage of more than 90 per cent. After all, it is surprising how little it takes to keep the human machine going when you really have to make every penny count, and the strange thing about it is that with a restricted diet the American people have never before enjoyed better health.

Letter-writing is a coveted art which everyone should admire. Too often people say, "Oh I just can't do it; I do dislike writing a letter." Perhaps it is with deep regret we must admit letter-writing is getting to be a lost art. Folks usually decline to write because they are caught in the tide of daily affairs and will not take the time. It may be true, also, that many have reduced their quota of letters on account of the increased postage rate; and in time gradually lost interest in writing. Nevertheless, letter-writing should be encouraged, for it is good practice, mentally and socially. A little cultivating of the art and one may become fluent, entertaining and educated in rhetoric, grammar and orthography. Everyone owes it to himself to embrace the opportunity of becoming a willing, entertaining correspondent. It makes character besides becoming to a good conversationalist.

Among the splendid authors and poets of California of past years, the late Robert Louis Stevenson whose 84th birthday anniversary is celebrated on the 13th of this month. For a man who endured the ill-health and poverty that he did, Stevenson's books were among the most appreciated of all writers. He spent many years throughout California prior to leaving for the South Islands for his health, and where he died and was buried. His stay in San Francisco won for him deep affection from all, and today a monument stands in Portsmouth Square. From San Francisco, Stevenson went to Europe to remain for eight years. His second stay in California was of three weeks' duration only, while arranging for the charter of a vessel to take him to his Samoan home in the early '90s. He died December 3, 1894.

There is a certain amount of fear spreading in California over the prospects of a predicted dry winter ahead. The prognosticators tell us rains will be light, and the more timid take it to be "simonpure." We have heard these warnings before, but there is no power on earth to help the situation. The rain-maker has come the nearest but old Mother Nature is standing by, and will not forsake us. One thing is sure (in California) we seem to get rain and "when it rains it pours," but we are particularly favored by better preparation against droughts than many other sections of the country.

The Panama Canal has just celebrated its 20th anniversary of completion, and after much fear of its being a financial failure it must be admitted that the result is just the opposite. The big ditch cost $540,000,000 but to date over 336 million dollars have been collected in tolls and fees, or 3 per cent a year since the investment. Besides 80,000 ships have saved days and distance by the great Cape Horn cutoff. By all means the canal has proven a boon to world trade—And it has stepped up world development about 100 years. The canal is one of Uncle Sam's best assets.

Human nature, by habit seems to glory in publicity and newspaper praise but the most successful men again seem to be the ones who move in silence and attract the least public attention. This is true in politics, for very often the most unworthy candidate gets the greatest lauding just when the sifting process should be at work. A true patriot to his country is not the man or woman who goes into office for the salary.

Three Tempting Meat Sauces

By Caroline B. King
Home Economics and Culinary Authority

A LONG, long time ago some great French epicure, I think it was Talleyrand, on a visit to Great Britain wrote his chef, also a famous gourmet, that in his opinion England was a great country, but that to his sorrow it knew but one sauce—and that sauce, as we are all well aware, was and still is the familiar brown gravy which we in America serve all too frequently.

Why not vary our sauces a bit? It can be so easily done especially now that we are permitted the use of wines and have at our command so many pungent spices and relishes which as the French say "flatter the palate" so admirably. Why cling to the same old gravy, good though it may be and appropriate as it is at times?

I have a Claret sauce which transforms a roast duck, a Cherry sauce which makes of roast pork or broiled pork chops a simply luscious dish, and a Loganberry sauce which is mouth-watering with any meat, hot or cold, broiled, baked or boiled.

The Claret sauce calls for its first ingredient 4 tablespoons of liquid from the roasting pan. To this are added 2 generous tablespoons of sugar, 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, 1 teaspoon of grated horseradish, with salt and paprika to taste. Then the sauce is allowed to simmer a few moments in the double boiler — not long — just enough to blend all the zestful flavors. Finally a cup of claret is added and the simmering continues until the sauce is steaming hot. Serve in a gravy boat.

Cherry sauce is such a change from the inevitable apple sauce with which we usually eat our pork, or even roast goose. Make it by blending together 1½ cups cherries, the tart kind, fresh or canned, 1 cup of hot water, ½ cup granulated sugar, 3 cloves, a small bit of stick cinnamon and 2 allspice berries. Cook until the cherries are tender enough to be pressed through a sieve. Meantime cook together to the bubbling stage a tablespoon each of butter and flour, add the cherry pulp, season to taste and cook till thickened. Then stir in ½ cup of any light wine—sauterne, sherry or a white Rhine vintage. When heated throughout, serve.

Loganberry sauce calls for half a cup each granulated sugar and loganberry juice (you may substitute blackberry or raspberry juice if more convenient, though the sauce will not be so rich in flavor) 2 teaspoons grated horseradish, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, with 2 teaspoons of the grated rind, and ¼ cup claret or light port wine. Stir together well, bring to the boiling point and serve. Served cold with cold veal, lamb, chicken or ham.

Masquerade Barn Dance Tuesday, November 20

Another popular masquerade barn dance will be given on Tuesday evening, November 20, at Ratliff's Dancing academy, 11th and Broadway, San Diego, by Anna Rebekah lodge No. 137, I.O.O.F., this being the sixteenth annual benefit dance given by this lodge.

Dancing and cards will provide an evening's entertainment, and a special event will be the grand march, when discriminating judges will award prizes for best rube costumes Many are planning to attend in costume and in masquerade, although it is optional for guests to do so, and whether or not every one will be welcome to share in the evening's gay time.

Annual Red Cross Roll Call.

Directed by the San Diego chapter, American Red Cross, the annual roll call of this famous service organization is being conducted this week in the city and its environs and in more than 50 communities of the county. The roll call will continue through Thanksgiving day.

Services rendered by the Red Cross locally and nationally are outlined by C. D. Weiss, San Diego chapter roll call chairman as follows:

Direct relief, personal and home service to those of the 22,000 veterans residing in San Diego county who require it.

Service to a montbly average of 460 enlisted men and veteran families.

More than 11,000 calls for relief or service handled during the year at San Diego Red Cross office.

Conducts classes in first aid, life saving, home hygiene and care of sick. Directs activities of more than 32,000 children in San Diego city and county schools who are enrolled in Junior Red Cross.

Disaster relief is everywhere recognized as the responsibility of the Red Cross.

Red Cross volunteers during the year made more than 4,700,000 garments, 3,675,000 surgical dressings and produced more than 650,000 pages of Braille for the blind, among various activities.

A court of awards will be held November 24. The scouts have been busy completing badge requirements. Girls completing the Starfinder are Phyllis Bradberry, Charlotte Bradberry, Grace Oliver, Otila Shields, Addie Evelyn Fish, and Julia Kelly,

Mr. Gander, natural history museum, served as examiner.

The girls finishing child nurse are Phyllis Cook, Martha Sterne, Jackalee Grant, Mary Jane Mackey and Katherine Madigan.

Marjorie Bonne spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Naomi Dick passing her house-keeper badge.

Mrs. Otila P. Shields served as examiner for health-winner badge at Point Loma high school, November 8, passing Marjorie Boone, Phyllis Bradberry, Charlotte Bradberry, and Barbara McCarty.

Our next troop project will be the pathfinder merit badge.

We hope to have the pleasure of Mrs. Winifred Davidson's guidance for the section of the badge which concerns early traditions in San Diego.

—Phyllis Cook, scribe.

SAN DIEGO COUNTY ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Construction of a new highway by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads between Laguna Mountain resort and Cuyamaca Lake in San Diego County will soon be under way, it is reported to the engineering department of the Automobile Club of Southern California. It will be known as the Laguna-a-Cuyamaca cut-off.

Beginning just north of Cuyamaca Lake, the new highway will lead directly into the Laguna recreational area and will be 22 miles shorter than the present route via Descanso. To complete the project, 15 miles of highways will be built at a cost of $300,000.

OCEAN BEACH SCHOOL

The H2 children have been making a puppet show. They have finished the theater and are now working on the puppets. They hope to have a very nice show.

The H1 children are ready to have a grocery store. They are studying about healthful habits, fruits and vegetables.

The children of the Ocean Beach kindergarten are still hard at work on their train. They are having difficulty finding wood. Wooden boxes are at a premium it seems. Any one possessing a spare wooden box and wishing to donate it to the kindergarten will find the boys and girls of that room more than glad to take it off their hands.

Ocean Beach school has enrolled a number of children from other schools or cities this week. The enrollment is increasing quite rapidly. Rolland McIntyre and Eldon Judson came from McKinley school. Margaret Stark formerly of Ocean Beach returned to us from Yakima, Washington. Auma Jene Senn, who was here last year, came back from New York. Norma Williams enrolled in the H- grade, having come to us from Long Beach. Genevieve Lamb transferred to us from Alice Birney school in San Diego. Betty Bishop, formerly of San Pedro enrolled in the H4 grade.

WARREN WALKER SCHOOL

Friday morning the kindergarten class under the direction of Miss Eleanor Newlon gave a program during opening exercises for the other students in the Warren-Walker school Anna Helen Finn recited Robert Louis Stevenson's poem "A Birdie With a Yellow Bill". Next the group dramatized the story of "The Little Red Hen." The class then did an old Scotch folk dance, "The Chimes of Dunkirk."

A week ago the entire school went on a hike to the beach to gather various types of shells about which the students have been studying. Since then they have mounted these shells upon tag-board and labelled each individual exhibit. Each person is writing a short composition about his specimens and it will be compiled in a scrapbook with the others.

Lane Ussery, because of his good conduct, has been chosen safety officer for the week.

HINTS ABOUT WALNUTS IN COOKING

Now that walnuts are more popular than ever before, both because of quality and price, many housewives are puzzled as to the best ways to prepare and use them in cooking.

Mrs. Julia Lee Wright, director of the Homemakers' Bureau of Safeway stores, Inc., offers several solutions to those problems in connection with the company's annual grower-consumer walnut campaign. Based on her experience, the following hints may save you a great deal of time and trouble:

1. When you use walnuts in baking, dip the kernels in flour before adding them to the recipe. This will prevent their falling to the bottom of the baking dish.

2. To get full walnut halves for decorating cakes, cookies, salads, etc., crack the walnut by standing it on the flat end and striking it lightly with a hammer on the sharp point.

3. Don't grind walnuts unless the recipe directs it. Chop them—and they'll retain their full crunchy crispness.

4. One pound of Diamond walnuts in the shell will produce a little over one-half pound, or two cups, of kernels.

ADJUSTING BANKING TO CHANGING NEEDS

By ROBERT V. FLEMING
Vice President American Bankers Association

BANKERS recognize that changing conditions require new methods of doing business. However it is their responsibility to retain those essential and sound financial principles upon which this country was founded and has grown to be what is still the richest nation in the world.

R. V. FLEMING

Many of our difficulties have arisen from lack of confidence and from misunderstanding. Therefore it behooves the banker to bend every effort to create a better public understanding of sound banking and thereby bring about that united effort and cooperative spirit which will hasten the day of national recovery and restore to the banker the confidence of the public to which he is entitled.

As an approach to the realization of this ideal, bankers should carefully scrutinize every application for a loan to see if it is bankable and, if it is not in bankable form, then make further examination to see if the loan can be made so, in order that the uses of credit may be stimulated.

Explaining Loan Factors to Customers

We must not expect our customers to be bankers and understand all the factors which we must consider before granting a loan. If we find that a loan is not, and cannot be made, bankable, then I think we should take pains to explain to the applicant the reasons why it cannot be granted.

There are other measures which I think it important for the banker to undertake in order to eliminate the misunderstandings which have arisen and overcome the sentiment which exists. Under present conditions we have to operate under many laws and regulations, and also watch what further legislation is being proposed which affects our methods of operation and may not be in the best interest of the communities we serve. Nowadays it seems at times we must sit with a law book in one hand and a book of regulations in the other in order to make certain we are discharging our daily duties and functioning strictly in accordance with the law. All of this is very trying, yet I think in the end we shall become better bankers.

I believe it is the duty of every banker today to endeavor to understand the public he serves. In addition to his daily duties, trying as they are, he should participate in the activities of his community, so that, with the fund of information available to him, he may be as helpful as possible in all public and civic matters.

COMPTROLLER COMMENDS INSTITUTE OF BANKING

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The American Institute of Banking, said to be the most successful project of its kind in the field of applied adult education, has performed a valuable function in training bank clerks for "sound public service as well as personal success," J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, said here in a recent radio address. The institute is a section of the American Bankers Association.

"While imparting useful knowledge, it has improved the morale of banking personnel and has stimulated in its members an intelligent interest in national and international monetary problems," Mr. O'Connor said. "Its courses cover a wide field in banking. Among the subjects, one finds Bank Organization and Operation, Commercial Law, Negotiable Instruments Law, and Economics, in the Pre-Standard Division; followed by such subjects as Money and Banking, Credit Management, Financial Statement Analysis and Bank Management, in the Standard Division.

"Each and every subject is one which is necessary to a knowledge of banking. However, the institute does not stop here, but encourages graduate study in Corporation Finance, Trust Service, Farm Credit Administration and Business Forecasting. Again it emphasizes in special courses the importance of the less technical but highly beneficial study of Constructive Customer Relations, Banking Fundamentals and Public Speaking. No comment is necessary on these courses: their value is at once apparent."

BOOKLET ON FARM CREDIT

A booklet has been published by the Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association, on "Factors Affecting Farm Credit," for the purpose of furthering on a national scale the taking of farm inventories and the making of credit statements as sponsored by the commission in cooperation with the state colleges of agriculture and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The goal is better relationships between farmers and their banks.

The booklet is devoted to the types of loans generally required by farmers, the need for farm credit, how it can be obtained, when it is safe to borrow, what principles to follow to establish credit in advance of needs, and how both the lender and borrower are interested in sound, productive farm credit.

DRAMATIC SKIT "MAN—EVOLVED MONKEY OR POTENTIAL GOD"

On Thursday evening, November 22nd, 1934 at 7:30 p. m. in the bungalow of the Ocean Beach school a dramatic skit entitled "Man—Evolved Monkey or Potential God" will be presented by members of the San Diego Theosophical club at the social meeting.

The symposium was written by Jalie Neville Shore and will be directed by her. The cast includes T. T. Clemesha, H. D. Brenner, Mrs. Earl Hostler, Miss Barbara Bryant, Miss Veleda White and little Miss Marian Nicholson.

All are welcome and there will be an opportunity for questions.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY, POINT LOMA

"Justice. or How to Save Civilization," will be the subject of the public forum-lecture at Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma, next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to be delivered by O. I. Clark, well-known Southern California horticultural scientist and for 38 years a lecturer on Theosophy and general topics of public interest. He will be assisted in the answering of questions by Miss Florence Collisson, a fellow of the Theosophical society since 1898, when she joined it in England. Ever since then Miss Collisson has been engaged in active Theosophical service, first at the society's headquarters in London, and since 1923 at the International headquarters Point Loma, specializing in educational and dramatic work among the young people.

AMERICAN LEGION NO. 433 and AUXILIARY

Last Friday evening the Ocean Beach post American Legion and auxiliary sponsored an Armistice Day program at the Pt. Loma Methodist church. War time community songs were sung by all after which Rev. Hughes introduced Commander R. G. Chadwick, who in turn introduced the speaker of the evening comrade Dr. John Parks Gilmer, who gave a most wonderful Armistice Day speech. The church male quartet all of whom are veterans, rendered two very good songs; Mrs. Anna Forsythe sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning." A very fine Armistice song was rendered by Mary Lou Wenrich, Anna Marie Sharpe and Ralph Chadwick jr., Commander Chadwick then showed two films of moving pictures "Our Navy in The World War and The Hawian Islands" Mrs. Grace Chadwick officiated at the piano for the singing.

The members of Ocean Beach post American Legion wish to express their appreciation to the merchants and individuals who helped us present the California Veterans Proposition No. 1 on the ballot to the people of Ocean Beach and of the State, for by so doing we feel sure that a better understanding of just what it meant was gven to the people thereby making the passage much easier. Again we thank you, not only for ourselves, but for those California's own veterans who will be enabled to purchase small farms and homes, thus creating an aid to recovery and relieving unemployment through the coming winter months.

Ralph G. Chadwick, commander.

THE POINT LOMA ASSEMBLY

The women's division of the Point Loma assembly held its regular afternoon meeting at the clubhouse on Talbot street Thursday, Nov. 15.

The program was most enjoyable. Mrs. O. J. L. Arsenault reviewed "Racial Myths" by Paul Radin, and Miss Thelma Jolliffe sang, accompanied by Mrs. Evelyn Wooden.

Mrs. John Davidson and Mrs. Stanley Turner were hostesses for the day.

PTA STUDY GROUP

"What we may do to safeguard our children from degeneracy" was outlined in a talk before the Ocean Beach PTA members and friends Tuesday, Nov. 13th in the Scout hut.

Special music will be rendered by the choir.

You are cordially invited to the services of this church.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"The creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God." These words of Paul's to the Romans are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Mortals and Immortals" on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Lesson-Sermon includes these Bible verses from Luke: "And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise life up herself. And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity. And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God."

One of the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "When the illusion of sickness or sin tempts you, cling steadfastly to God and His idea. Allow nothing but His likeness to abide in your thought. Let neither fear nor doubt overshadow your clear sense and calm trust, that the recognition of life harmonious—as Life eternally is—can destroy any painful sense of, or belief in, that which Life is not."

The Loman Reporter

Because of the beauty and effectiveness of last year's Christmas play for the public, Dicken's "Christmas Carol", the drama department at the request of Mr. Swenson will again present the classic Christmas play on the evenings of December 19 and 20 in Point Loma's auditorium. Two of last year's graduates who carried leads will return to assist in the same parts they last year interpreted under Mr. Shepherd's direction.

The dream of old Scrooge, the miser, will be enacted upon a scrim curtain with a play of light and shadow contrived by the stage crew. Colorful singing and dancing, folk fashion, by the glee clubs and girls' athletic association will give the atmosphere of a countryside Christmas in Old England. To the five stained glass windows simulated on paper by the art department will be added two more this year. These seven really unusual imitations of stained glass windows will transform the auditorium into an old world cathedral.

The Lomans present these two Christmas gift performances of a memorable story to the public thru the Drama department of Point Loma High assisted by other departments and the school at large.

——PLHS——

The Art Department focuses atttention again upon some exceedingly fine work in the block print hanging by Ella Cook which at present adorns one of Marston's windows in an all-school art exhibit. At the recent Teacher's party at the Zlac club Ed Foster's nicely artistic place cards were a pleasing detail at the dinner tables. Marjorie Linthicum, under direction of Mrs. Ruby Johnson, is undertaking to lead the making of the two additional stained glass windows for permanent use in artistic dramatization work at Point Loma High.

——PLHS——

Last year's Annual has just received a first class honor rating from the National Scholastic Press Association. With the amount of money the Lomans allow for a Senior annual this is an exceedingly good rating and marks an advance in the last year.

The Pointer received a rating of excellent in editing and make-up, financial status and mechanics due to the mark of the following staff under Kenneth Christianson and assisted by Miss A. Bess Clark.

M. E. CHURCH SERVICES

"The Universal Salute" will be the subject of the sermon next Sunday morning at the Pt. Loma Methodist church, corner of Saratoga and Sunset Cliffs Blvd. Rev. James H. Hughes the pastor of the church, will preach. Music by the choir and male quartet under the direction of Mrs. Ray Forsythe. Morning service from 11 a. m. to 12 a. m. The Sunday school begins at 9:45 with classes for all age groups in religious education. An adult class is taught by Dr. F. R. Felt. Come and bring the children. Epworth League in the evening at 7 o'clock. All are invited.

The annual bazaar given by the ladies of the Methodist church of Ocean Beach will be held in the woman's clubhouse December 7. Dinner will be served as in other years. The affair is being sponsored by the woman's council and the proceeds will go toward the general work of the church program in Ocean Beach.

Credits were awarded Tuesday night to those members of the inter-denominational church school having successfully completed the six weeks of leadership training. Rev. James Hughes of Ocean Beach taught the class in "The Plan and Progress of the Christian Religion."

An Armistice Day program was sponsored by the Ocean Beach post of the American Legion last Frday night at the Methodist church. Mrs. Elizabeth Finley was the chairman of arrangements.

The district conference for the San Diego Methodist churches was held last night at the First Methodist church. Rev. James Hughes made a favorable report regarding the work of the Ocean Beach Methodist church.

SYNOPSIS

Prudence Schuyler comes to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, his health broken by tragedy. The second day on her farm Prue falls from the barn loft into the arms of Rodney Gerard, rich young man, a neighbor. There is at once a mutual attraction, but Prudence decides to maintain a cool attitude toward him. She suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife. Len Calloway tries to buy Prue's timber, but she dislikes him and contracts with Rod to dispose of the trees. David comes to the farm. A clown appears, advertising a circus in a nearby town. Prue accompanies Rod and Jean to the show. While they are watching the parade, Chicot, an old clown, is accidentally killed. He was the grandfather of Milly Gooch, one of the circus riders. Rod became friendly with Milly when she lived on Prosperity Farm. Calloway intimidates available laborers so that they cannot be hired to cut the timber for Rodney Gerard. Milly Gooch broke her engagement to Calloway; he believes Rod was the cause and has since been his enemy. After the accident to Chicot, Rod calls on Milly to see if he can be of any help.

"It's so fine, I'll tuck it in here." She thrust it under her low-cut bodice.

"What will you do this winter, Milly?"

"Hollywood. Two big shots from a traveling talkie studio saw me ride a month ago. And what do you think? Mother Puffer and old 'whatta mean is' Si came to see me this afternoon! She wants I should spend Christmas with them. What say, Roddy?"

"If you visit the Puffers you may run into Len Calloway."

"What if I do? I'll give him a little whirl for old times' sake. You don't think I'm afraid of that big noise, do you? I've traveled some since I sent you that S O S."

"And traveled straight, Milly?"

"Time for your act, Milly."

As the maid spoke behind them, a groom in rose-color velvet with silver trimming led a milk-white horse bridled with rhinestones to the tent.

Milly caught Rodney's hands and looked up at him. "I'll be good. I promised you, didn't I? There's only one person who could tempt me not to be, and he—he doesn't know I'm on earth. He—"

A hiss. A flash cut off the word.

"What was that?"

"Don't be so jumpy, Roddy. If you traveled with this show you'd get used to that sound. Flashlight. Publicity, of course. Some reporter writing up the show wants a picture." A whistle blew. "That's for me. I'd better get going. Bye-bye, Roddy. Don't—don't send me any more money—ever—I won't need it—now that I've gone Hollywood. Perhaps you'll be at High Ledges at Christmas—if Miss Schuyler stays."

What had she meant by that, Gerard wondered, as his eyes followed her in her rose-color tulle and glistening satin across the yard. Was his feeling for Prue so evident?

One foot on the step of his car, Gerard stopped and stared. Had a red roadster shot out of the parking place just ahead, or was Len Calloway so much on his mind that he had imagined it?

* * * * * * *

"Darn!" she gritted between her teeth, as the elusive thing wriggled away from her. "Mr. Si, I'm not so good as I thought. Give me a hand, will you?"

Puffer seized the netting, and pulled. "Grand! Hold it a minute till I get this brad in; two more and it's done. These pesky hens got out yesterday and scratched in my garden border. There! I'd like to see them get through that!"

"The pesky hens ain't the only things that escaped yesterday. Hear 'bout the convict who dug himself out of prison?"

"Jane Mack heard the announcement on the radio and told me. She's all excited about it. He isn't likely to come to this small town, is he?"

"Gorry-me, he'd be running his head into a noose if he did." Puffer shook the wire netting. "That's a good job you've done. And you've done another good job. Your brother is so much better."

Prudence sprang to her feet. Her eyes shone, her face was radiant.

"Then you've noticed it, too, Mr. Si? It isn't just my imagination?"

"Sure, I've noticed it. So's Mother. Whatta mean is, his color is better, his voice is stronger, an' he moves quicker. Comin' to live in the country is jest settin' David on his feet. Rod's noticed it, too."

"Oh, he has! I haven't seen Mr. Gerard lately so I didn't know. Prudence avoided Puffer's eyes as she remembered the many times of late that she had fled to the barn loft so that she would not see Rodney Gerard when he called.

"No. Dave has, but—but I was out when he called."

"Well, of course, Rod was away to the city most three weeks trying to get some firms to sign up for the timber you and him are goin' to cut. Since he come back he's been terrible busy cruising the woods. Rod isn't used to havin' difficulty gettin' what he wants; things have always come easy for him. This lumber business 'pears to be gettin' on his nerves. Jim was tellin' me this morning that Rod snapped at every one who come near him yesterday. Perhaps it's that newspaper picture of him and Milly Gooch holdin' hands in front of her tent at the circus that come out in the local paper the day after the show was here that got him mad. Well, if here he isn't now! What you gum-shoeing round like that for, Roddy?"

Prudence was furious at her own start of surprise. Had Rodney Gerard seen it? He did look troubled. There were lines between his nose and mouth she never had seen before; he had lost some of his bronze. His eyes seemed deeper and darker and bluer in contrast.

"Well, will I pass? Perhaps you weren't sizing me up, perhaps you were just wondering how it happened that I had caught you, Prue of Prosperity farm."

"Don't bite, Rod." Si Puffer flung himself into the breach. "Now that you've got company, Miss Prue, I'll go an' chop some wood."

He moved away with surprising quickness.

"Mr. Si!" Prudence started after him, but Gerard caught her arm and held it.

"You're not going until you tell me why you have been dodging me."

"I dodging! How absurd!"

"Is it? Drop that hammer. It makes you look bloodthirsty." As she still clutched the tool, he loosened her fingers until it dropped to the ground. "That's better. I want to talk to you before Armstrong and Jean get here. Have you seen that infernal picture?"

"Picture?" Prue echoed the word with breezy indifference.

"Don't bluff. You know perfectly well that I'm referring to that fool snapshot of Milly Gooch and me at the circus."

"Oh, that! Really, I'm not interested."

"Look here, you've got to be interested. I'm willing to bet my roadster that Calloway had a hand in that. It would be like his methods—"

"Don't abuse Len Calloway. It would be disloyal for me to listen because"—Prudence hoped that her eyes and voice were as maddeningly provocative as she intended them to be—"because, you see, I've decided to have him cut my timber."

"What!"

Never had she seen eyes blaze as Rodney Gerard's blazed in his white face. She remembered what Si had said about his mood the last week. She shouldn't have tried to torment him—but—hadn't that hateful picture hurt her, too? He caught her by the shoulders.

"You didn't mean that, Prue, about letting Calloway cut for you."

"Of course I meant it. The more I think of it the more I go bullish on the idea. I'm beginning to like Len very much. He's so forceful, so—"

"Forceful!" For a pulsing instant Rodney Gerard hesitated, then he caught her in his arms. "Forceful!" He crushed his mouth, hard, ardent, upon hers. "If that's what you like—Gorgeous—" He kissed her again.

Prudence wrenched herself free. Every pulse in her body was throbbing unbearably. How had he dared! Was that the way he kissed the circus rider? She dragged her voice back.

"Don't ever speak to me again! Ever! Do you think I'll let you cut my timber now? Suppose Len Calloway does cheat me in money, at least I shall be safe with him."

"Prue! You can't do it! You knew what you were doing when you looked at me like that. You're no child. Be a sport. You deliberately smashed my control, and now you make me pay for letting myself go. Well, I'll take my medicine, I will keep away until you want me, I'll never kiss you again until you ask me to, if—"

"I ask you? That's the funniest thing I ever heard."

"All right, it's the funniest thing you ever heard. But the promise stands. I—"

"Hi! Rod!"

The hail came from the garden. Prudence dashed toward the gate and collided with a big, spectacled man with heart warming eyes. He smiled.

"Miss Schuyler, isn't it? I would recognize you anywhere from Jean's description. I'm Jim Armstrong, and I am happy to report that you have a nice little bunch of money in your wood lot."

Prudence extended an eager hand. "Have I really! I'm so glad you've come. Now I can learn a lot about trees. Will you take me on as a pupil?"

From the corner of her eye Prue noted with satisfaction the set of Rodney Gerard's jaw. She would show him that he couldn't kiss her after he had been holding Milly Gooch's hands.

Jim Armstrong laughed. "Sure I'll take you along if Rod says the word. He's my boss. I'm a whale of a teacher. Rod said you had a plan of your wood lot, The Hundreds, Miss Schuyler. May I see it?"

"Of course. It's in my shop. I'll bring it to the living room."

Prudence was conscious of Gerard watching her as a few moments later she cleared a place on her brother's desk and spread out the blueprint. Jean danced in from the kitchen, her hands full of cookies.

She crossed the room to speak to David Schuyler seated in the wing chair. As Armstrong joined them, Rodney Gerard detained Prudence at the desk.

"Wait a minute! Look here, Prue, you didn't mean what you said about letting Calloway cut that timber. You mustn't do it."

The sternness of his voice sent tingles through her veins, but she kept her lids provokingly lowered.

"I can transact my own business, thank you. When I need help I shall appeal to Mr. Armstrong. He impresses me as being such a reliable, self-controlled person."

"And I'm not. I get you. All right, let me cut your timber and you will have no fault to find with me again—ever—I'll be the original ice man."

He turned on his heel.

As the outer door closed on Armstrong and Gerard, Prudence crossed to the fireplace and head on her hands resting on the mantel looked unseeingly down at the red coals.

"Is Armstrong an old friend, Prue?" her brother asked.

"You seemed to twinkle, twinkle with excitement when you spoke to him."

She dropped to the floor cushion beside his chair. "Humorous, aren't you? Perhaps I did rather overdo the welcome-to-our-city act, Dave, but—"

"It's So Fine, I'll Tuck It in Here."

"But it was done for Gerard's benefit, wasn't it? Like him a lot, don't you?"

"Like him! No. He leaves me cold."

"What have you against him?"

"You said yourself that you were confoundedly sorry that he—he knew that circus clown, Dave."

"If I had any suspicion of him then, I haven't now. I think him one of the finest, cleanest, straightest, most likable men I ever met, and you will admit that I have had some experience."

"That's what we thought about Julie's husband before they were married."

"I never thought that. He was irresistible and charming but—he had a bad eye. I tried to make Julie understand, but she wouldn't listen. I never have bared my heart to you before, Prue; never will again. I am doing it now to beg you to listen to your instinct when it sounds its warning toesin."

"I shall never love any man but you, Dave darling. I shall remain Prue of Prosperity farm and make your life a burden by camping on your trail."

"Go slow. No armor ever has been forged which is invulnerable to love. If you haven't really loved, you haven't really lived. As for having you camped on my trail, I wouldn't have pulled through if it hadn't been for you—and I have pulled through. I feel like a new man. I have a brand new outlook. I know now that I got the signals mixed, I surrendered to heartbreak and weakness when I should have accepted them as a challenge."

"Dave! Dave! How marvelous! There's the knocker. Who has come, I wonder. You've had visitors enough this morning, so I'll close the living room door. A peddler probably."

Prudence opened the front door. Len Calloway confronted her.

Without speaking he passed her and entered the shop. His assurance crisped her voice.

"What do you want?"

"Same old request. I want the contract to cut your timber."

"Same old answer." Prudence mimicked his diction to an inflection. "I have made arrangements with Gerard to cut it."

"Gerard again. Do you still think he is serious about this woodsman stuff? He—well, you saw that circus rider who calls herself Mademoiselle Millee, the day the old clown passed out. Her right name is Milly Gooch. She was engaged to me. Threw me over for Gerard and he—"

"That's a lie like some of the other statements you have made, Calloway." Her tone lashed his color to dark red, hardened his eyes."

"Oh, it is! See this?"

He held out an envelope. Involuntarily she read the address. Mr. Rodney Gerard.

"Get that? Now listen." He pulled out a card. "And get this:

"'Dear Roddy—

'Thanks for the check. Don't mail it again. Bring it as usual. I've kept my promise. Nobody knows.

Milly.'"

"I found that on the floor near Gerard's desk. Now will you let me handle your timber?"

Furious with herself that she had stood like a lump of putty and listened to the note, an unbearable realization that it confirmed her suspicions of Rodney Gerard's philandering roughened the voice in which Prudence scoffed:

"You must be the original if-at-first-you-don't-succeed-try-try-again lad. But his time you have thrown sand in the machinery. It won't work. Rodney Gerard and I will get that timber out."

Calloway's eyes burned red.

"You and Rodney Gerard! That's a joke. Try to get men to cut. Just try, that's all. I suppose you are trusting to your partner for that?"

Prudence swallowed a nervous chuckle. "You have guessed it. I am trusting to my partner to engage the men to cut. Good morning."

He looked like a man who was still dazed from a body blow as he departed. Once his lips moved, but Prue banged the door behind him before he could speak.

She leaned against it. Had Calloway found that note of Milly Gooch's in Rodney Gerard's room? "Don't mail it again." Apparently there had been other checks. Why hadn't she asked the man why he had been snooping at High Ledges? Not that she cared who wrote to Rodney Gerard or what he did with his money. Mrs. Walt had been right. Her butterfly brother did flit from flower to flower. He had thought that she—Prudence Schuyler—would allow—

Brazilian Catfish Amuse Visitors to Aquarium; Suspend Selves by Suction

The Brazilian catfishes are the comedians of the aquarium and provide more fun for the money than any other fish, says the Detroit News. They are becoming increasingly popular for a more utilitarian purpose, namely, that of scavengers. The corydoras are very hardy and they work incessantly at their scavenging job.

Some varieties attach themselves by suction of their mouths to the sides of the tank and hang vertically for hours. Though they like to prowl among the plants, they do not uproot them.

Many persons, recalling native catfish, are surprised to learn of the coloration of some of the South American species. Some of them are marked with metallic blue, splotches of black or dark brown or lateral stripes.

One interesting species is Octocinclus vittabus, which comes from Brazil. It is about an inch and a half long and has a habit of suspending itself for long periods at a time.

The catfish imported from South America are not to be confused with native catfish, which grow to a huge size. The catfish from South America average about two inches, although some species attain a somewhat larger size.

A King Was Cold

The judge's ermine and the mayor's fur collar are relics of the times when the temperatures of law courts and banqueting halls in England made them not an ornament but a necessity. Even at coronations it was hopeless to try to warm the Abbey, so the king and his august subjects were warmed instead, and modern sovereigns have cause to remember how chilly their ancestors felt when they in turn stifle under the same heavy fur robes. So cold were the homes of England that those who could afford it even slept in fur, and an old account book mentions the purchase of 17 skins to make a nightgown for Queen Elizabeth.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

The Secret of the Walnut Closet

MADAME DE POLVERE, member of the French nobility, was in great dread—she felt instinctively that the sword of death was hanging over her head.

In her extremity she communicated with Fouche, the French minister of police, asking that he send one of his representatives to her in order that she might give him a startling piece of information.

She laid stress on the fact that she did not want Fouche himself but one of his subordinates.

With characteristic perversity Fouche went himself—but in disguise.

His own brother would not have known him any more than did the butler at the handsome ancestral mansion on the Rue des Fosse-Saint-Victor, although the famous detective had attended more than one reception there.

There were two Madame de Polveres in the house—the young woman and the dowager of the same name.

He asked for the younger one, and presently was greeted by a ravishingly beautiful woman.

After some hesitation she told the detective that she was in deadly fear of being poisoned by her mother-in-law.

She said she was the third wife of the nobleman and that the other two had died very mysteriously.

The elder Madame de Polvere was fearful that the family name might become extinct.

When it became certain that the first two wives would bring no heirs to the nobleman they had languished and died.

The narrator told the minister of police that she had been married two years now, and it was improbable that she would have any children.

The mother-in-law had commented on this and thrown out ugly hints.

She had gone to the country and invited young Madame de Polvere to follow her.

She was afraid to do so and in her terror had sent for the detective.

Fouche listened to this amazing story and agreed to stay in the house and see the adventure through.

That night the countess returned nome and was furious at the disobedience of her daughter-in-law.

She went to her room and gave orders that she was not to be disturbed under any circumstances.

Fouche felt that the solution of the mystery would come before morning.

He managed to get a room opposite to that of the elderly one and he watched the door like a hawk.

An arrest could not be made on suspicion. He must have facts.

They came in the most unexpected and convincing manner.

The countess had the great misfortune—to herself—to be a sleepwalker.

About midnight the door of her room opened and the countess came out, clothed only in her nightdress and slippers and carrying an unlighted candle.

The police minister, who was in the hall, crouched against the side of the wall.

The woman passed without seeing him.

She walked up the staircase until she came to the third floor, which contained the servants' quarters.

Presently she reached a dingy passage which led to an unfrequented chamber.

She stealthily crossed the room, brushed aside a great tapestry, revealing a walnut panel.

She touched a secret spring and the door of a closet flew open, displaying a row of bottles containing poison.

Selecting one of these, she placed it in her nightdress and returned to her room.

The next morning she was placed under arrest and made an abject confession.

The police minister reported the case to the emperor, who declared that such a monstrous crime should not be permitted to go unpunished.

But he wished very much to save the honor of the noble house.

How could justice be done without casting lasting shame on an honored name?

"Leave it to me, sire," said the resourceful Fouche, "and I will guarantee that justice will be done."

He arrested the countess for an alleged political crime.

She was cast into prison for life.

Her husband and son pleaded for her, but when they learned the nature of her crime they broken-heartedly left her to her fate.

The fate she chose for herself—she made the punishment fit the crime by taking a dose of poison and dying in great agony.

U. S. Chamber of Commerce

Although the United States Chamber of Commerce was formed at a conference called at Washington in 1912 by President Taft, it is not a government organization, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. It is, instead, a federation of local chambers of commerce, boards of trade, national trade associations and similar bodies. Its purpose is to co-ordinate and express the views of the various groups that constitute it, to supply information on economic conditions, and to serve the whole nation in much the same manner as local chambers of commerce serve their communities.

Wrong Impression of "Doctoring" in China

The belief that in China the people do not pay their doctors when they are sick but only while they keep them well, has been shown to be false by writers on China. In a recent article in the New Outlook a writer gives an account of their system of medicine, which he says he has always thought one of the best. Each doctor is a specialist, with a single prescription supposed to cure everything. When a ber of a family gets sick, the . lly calls in as many doctors as the can afford to pay. He adds that this incidentally bursts forever the untruth that Chinese doctors are paid to keep the patient fit. The correspondent says that when several of these doctors are called in, each with their different prescriptions, a necromancer is summoned to choose which of these prescriptions shall be employed. If successful, the doctor and necromancer share the praise; if unsuccessful, the blame is shifted from the doctor to the necromancer and from him to the "will of heaven."

Why
Liquid Laxatives
Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a prescription. It is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they may do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

It is not wise to give laxatives of adult strength to a child, just because you give them less frequently or in less amounts. Many stomach upsets and bowel troubles of growing children can be traced to this single mistake.

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use, and this rich, fruity syrup does not harm or upset a child's system.

Give that headachy, bilious child a little of this gentle laxative when constipated, and a little less, if dose is repeated until bowels seem to be moving regularly and thoroughly without need of help.

Get the true California Syrup of Figs containing senna and cascara, which will not weaken the bowels or irritate the kidneys. You'll soon have full evidence that it safely relieves constipation in children.

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

Hard to Set Down Just What Is "Sex Appeal"

An old subject, but always of vital interest, is the matter which a famous woman writer deals with in the following article:

"With an apology for the request, one of our readers asks, 'Would you write in the column your definition of what is sex appeal?'

"The question will make some of my readers smile. To define sex appeal—to name the unnamable, to describe the indescribable—even though it is known to every adult, and is in fact so obvious as to need no definition! That will be the first reaction of many people to the question, 'What is sex appeal?'

"But I am not so sure sex appeal is something understood and obvious to all. The term conjures up, of course, visions of a slinky siren, voluptuous, blazing eyed, full red lipped—the personification of sex, to whose allure all men are slaves. And yet there are men to whom this 'vamp' type of woman is no more dangerous than is the sheik or gigolo type of man to many women. So there is no formula even for the strictly physical element in sex appeal.

"The strictly physical element, you may say—speaking of sex appeal, isn't the physical element all—? And that brings us to my point. We are speaking, not of love, of which sex is the consummation, but of sex appeal itself. And my thought is that even sex appeal is not all physical.

The young wife who is advised, if she would keep her husband's love, to keep her looks, does well, of course, to follow that advice. But if preoccupation with keeping young and pretty for him makes her vain, selfish, neglectful of his interests, it must affect not only his love for her, but her appeal for him. In a recent popular play a husband after cruel inconsiderateness and neglect expects to wipe out his wife's resentment with a passionate kiss and he is surprised and disappointed to find her quite unresponsive. 'You forget,' she says, 'that I stopped liking you.'

"It is not a question without sense, that 'What is sex appeal?' It may help to make marriages more successful if young people will realize that among average normal people, even the basic physical appeal between a man and a woman is usually not entirely apart from a pleasing of personalities, liking each other."

Giant King of Grizzlies Dies an Inglorious Death

Joe, king of the grizzlies of the Flathead river country, recently died an inglorious death. This great animal, weighing almost 1,000 pounds, had been monarch of this region for years and native guides had always boasted that Joe was the largest living grizzly that roamed the woods. He was boss of his domain and sent other grizzlies and black bears scurrying to cover if they challenged his right to rule. Recently rangers in the Flathead district came upon the body of Joe in a little clearing of Salmon park. He had fallen victim to poisoned bait left for coyotes.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot . . . "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

MR. AND MRS. SEW AND SOW OF OCEAN BEACH

"So-So, Mr. Sew and Sow;
So-So, tailors always sew;
Farmers in the springtime,
In the early morn,
With their packs upon their backs,
They will sow, sow, sow."

Mrs. Ruth Wickern, chief assistant to her husband in managing Sunset Market at 4803 Niagara street, has put a brave shoulder to the wheel as a helpmeet since she came from Bisbee, Arizona, eleven years ago to make Ocean Beach her permanent abode. The small grocery store first founded in her home has grown into a modern and fully equipped market with a full line of groceries, fruits and vegetables. Bright begonias and cactus plants give the premises a pleasing womanly touch.

Somehow Mrs. Wickern has found time for other things—music, books, church, education of her talented daughter, Shirley; and in the realm of flowers she has a sort of magic. Her garden is a beauty spot where birds pour forth sweet notes. "The secret of success in raising plants," she says, "is in making and keeping them happy. If they droop in the sunshine, give them shade; if they droop in the shade, give them sunshine and you will get your reward."

In all her years of service as a citizen, Mrs. Wickern has not only sown flower seeds, but smiles, sympathy, and many little untold kindnesses have found fertile soil in the hearts of friends.

At the Warren-Walker School, 4867 Santa Cruz street, children are taught to make gardens. Children are naturaly close to nature, and lessons learned in this way may be the best way of spreading knowledge Trees also beautify these grounds. The child who loves a tree today may be the useful forester tomorrow.

LIEUT. BERT A. ALLEN POST No. 2415 AND AUXILIARY

The officers of the Lieut. Bert A. Allen post No. 2415 and ladies auxiliary were installed in their chairs at a joint ceremony, Thursday, Nov. 9, and are now busy inaugurating their programs for the coming year.

Commander Madigan, realizing that he has a full year of extraordinary hard work ahead of him, is starting off without the usual false enthusiasm of the new broom. Sez Bill "This is going to be a long game. Let's spread our efforts over the entire period and keep pounding. The time for a spurt is at the end and if you spurt at thestart you won't have one left to finish with."

A joint meeting of the post and auxiliary was held Saturday afternoon at which time plans were laid for forthcoming entertainments, the first of which is to be held at the post hall, 1955 Abbott street, at 8 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 6, 1934. Cards are the order of the day and bridge, five hundred, pinochle and flinch will be played.

Chas. A. Nelson, 1925 Bacon St., is now a member of the post, having transferred from Ingram ship No. 1774. Welcome home comrade

You veterans! Are you doing your part? Have you joined the veteran organization to which you are eligible or are you letting your former comrades in arms carry on for you?

The post, lead by Commander Madigan, participated in the Armistice Day parade held in San Diego, and were spectators at the football game following. The American Legion Armistice association is to be commended for the remarkably fine program they sponsored. It was a pleasure for Lt. Bert A. Allen post No. 2415, Veterans of Foreign Wars to take part in such an impressive event.

With an impressive air of peace and good fellowship, amid the profusion of God's beautiful flowers, the gorgeous flags of our country and the regalia of our officers, the Lt. Bert A. Allen post and auxiliary No. 2415 V. F. W. were installed. To aid them in their work was the feeling of friendship that prevailed of the many friends and members of our organization. The words of our installing officers. Commander Fastnacht of Gordon M. Dawson No. 1877 and past County Council president Ruth Palmer of Ramon Moreno No. 1780 Veterans of Foreign Wars go far toward teaching a lesson of the great work to be done and will live long in the memories of those present.

Thoughts of love and appreciation were expressed with flowers and gifts Refresments were served followed by cards for those carng to participate.

It is with a deep feeling of appreciation that we thank our departed officers for their diligent work this past year and for all the accomplishments achieved. May the new officers carry on this noble work with a vim that cannot be surpassed working to objective for which we have aimed, aiding those needing our aid with untiring efforts.

The ladies auxiliary of this post participated in the Armistice Day parade and the ball game following. The parade has been proclaimed by many as being very fine, and too much commendation cannot be given the American Legion Armistice day association for their efforts to make this parade a success.
